

A Defining Moment

Written by chris robertshaw
Thursday, 28 January 2010 07:02

PAG has continually highlighted the damage the current strength of the block vote is doing to the process of democracy in our parliament.

Liberal Vannin's very latest press release (in relation to the reciprocal health agreement and asking for a free vote of conscience for members of Tynwald) highlights this in the starkest fashion possible.

There was a time when your vote for a particular candidate at the general election meant something - has the block vote completely destroyed this?